14. Does the law provide for observation proceedings?
Long Question:	Does the law provide for observation proceedings? An observation is a notification of information by a third party to the Office in order to obtain total or partial rejection of the application/registration of a mark. Observations can usually be made on any ground. The third party who has made an observation will not usually be a party to the decision of the Office. In principle, when the answer is "Yes", the E-Mark Comment will specify what grounds can be given as observation and who is entitled to make such observation.
Short Answer:	See E-Mark Comment
Comment:	No action similar to the so called "observation" is provided in Portuguese Trade Mark Law as a procedure distinct from the opposition, but in current practice our Office does accept observations originating from some control bodies, such as the Institute for Vineyards and Wines (Instituto da Vinha e do Vinho).
